“U.S. and Global Economies – Poised for Better Times?”

Dr. Allen Sinai

IGE/KITA Global Trade Forum

07:00-09:00, January 7, 2014

Lilac Room, Westin Chosun Hotel

Dr. Allen Sinai, chairman and chief economist of Decision Economics, Inc., will share his views whether or not the US and the global economies are poised for better times and whether or not it will be sustainable. Along with this, he will present his analysis of the quantitative easing of major economies in terms of outcomes and future scenarios. He will also bring to the table his forecast on global financial markets and asset allocations.

Time Magazine has said: “Anyone who thinks economics is a dismal science has never been treated to the vivid commentaries of Allen Sinai.” For many years, Dr. Sinai has consulted with the US Congress and many administrations. He taught at MIT, New York University and others and served as President of the North American Economics and Finance Association.
